

Synopsis of “Singing for Pleasure” sessions

Emma Morley is going to lead a weekly “Singing for Pleasure” group (3:15-4:15pm Wednesdays) from now until Christmas and then review whether to continue (based on the average number attending each week).

- Each session will begin with vocal warm ups, as is typical of any professionally run singing session - to warm up the vocal chords and upper body.
- As advertised, we will then sing a number of songs, from a range of genres; this will be largely unison singing with some simple part singing where appropriate.
- Words to songs will be provided; Emma will lead the session from the front and there will also be an accompanist.
- There will be a very small teaching element to enhance the singing experience (e.g. varying dynamics/tempo changes etc).
- People are more than welcome to suggest musical items for inclusion in the sessions and Emma would be very happy to consider these. The suggestion was made that we could sing one or two WW1 songs, and we will certainly include these during Remembrance week.
